“In the Class of 2018, we are recognizing seven outstanding stakeholders of the MLP and energy infrastructure community,” said Kenny Feng, President and CEO of Alerian. “Their contributions were critical to the formation and tremendous growth of capital markets for the midstream portion of the energy value chain, and it is our privilege to celebrate their careers in March.”

The Class of 2018 was elected by the 17 current members of the Ammys Hall of Fame. Each member is given one vote per category, and the finalist with the most votes is elected. Any ties are first decided by the current members of the Ammys Hall of Fame in that category, then by number of finalist appearances, and finally by number of votes in the prior year.

The other members of the Ammys Hall of Fame are Rob Baldwin, Chris Buckalew, Randy Burkhalter, Michael Cannon, John Chandler, Pat Diamond, Dan Duncan, Tim Fenn, Randy Fowler, Rick Gross, Ed Guay, Rich Kinder, David LaBonte, Mark Leland, Kevin McCarthy, Barry Miller, and Dave Schulte.
